David Davis, and Henry Stuart Swayne, of Toledo, Ohio, son of Justice Swayne, also of the Supreme bench, were married at Bloomington, Ill. The ceremony was performed at seven o'clock by Rev. J. B. Taggart, of the Presbyterian Church, at the residence of Judge Davis, the Episcopal services being used in deference to the wishes of Mr. Swayne. There were no brides-maids. The bride wore a heavy white silk with the usual decorations. The wedding gifts were unusually numerous and elegant, and tho attendance was very large, including many notables from this and other States. The house was profusely decorated, and all arrangements perfect. Mrs. Swayne, nee Davis, is helress to a fortune of one milion dollars. The bridal trip will be David Davis, and Henry Stuart Swayne, ion dollars. The bridal trip will be through the South.

Another Boston Explosion.

Boston, Dec. 23 .- A sad disaster oc urred last evening at the Federal-street bridge, where an explosion took place which blew into the air some fifty feet which olew into the air some may tech of sidewalk on the south side of the bridge, wrecked the grain and feed ware-house of Sumner, Crosby & Son, No. 21 Dorchester avenue, in front of which the disaster occurred, and blowing into the chasm made by the explosion several people, some of whom were fatally hurr.

Boston, Dec. 23.—The disastrous ex-plosion at Federal-street bridge yester-day is now thought to have had a similar origin to that or last May in La Grange origin to that of last May in La Grange street. The immense force required to uproot so vast an amount of masonry could not have been supplied, so far as at present known, by any combination of elements which make up illuminating gas. The inquest, which will soon be held, will, it is hoped, throw some light as the subject.

The Herald's Secret Society. The New York Herald of yesterday has another page of Anti Catholic Secret Society news. From a Cincinnati correspondent it publishes the following:

respondent it publishes the following:
GINCINNATI, Dec. 21.—Your representative to-day interviewed R. H. Stephenson, Surveyor of this Port; Gustav R. Wahle, Postmaster; W. M. Ampt, Ex-County Prosecuting Attorney; Julius Blackburn, Ex-Clerk of the Common Council; Dr. Clendenin, Ex-Health Officer, all Republicans, and Mayor Johnston, Democrat, concerning the expose in this day's Herald of the Secret American Union. None of them knew of such organization having a branch in this city.

After much discussion the motion prevailed, and those opposed were invited to withdraw from the meeting. Subsequently the Order was changed to an Anti-Catholic organization, and as such still exists. There are minor organizations of the same character in nearly every one of the twenty-five wards of the city.

Mr. Coroles, of the Cleveland Leader, denies the Secret Order story.

Mr. Ruskin at present is advocating dancing as a part of religious education, and thus assails young lady Sunday-school teachers: "At present," he says, "you keep the dancing for yourselves, and graciously teach your scholars the catechism. Suppose you were to try for a little while learning the catechism yourself and teaching them to dance." self and teaching them to dance."

William Alston Hayne, a son of Hayne, Webster's autagonist, sits in the California Legistature for Santa Rarbara and Ventura. He is fifty-four years old and describes himself as "a Democrat of the old school," Mr. Hayne sat in the Legislature of South Carolina just before highwayne of the age of secession. before the passage of the act of secession, and went to California in 1867.

It is said that there is a buck in the mountains a few miles north of the village of Port Jervis, which many hunters, have tried in vafu to kill. He has made his appearance in the woods a short distance back of Sparrowbush every winter during the past ten or twelve years. He is a very heavy animal, and it is thought would weigh nearly 400 pounds. Age has turned his hair nearly white.

A remarkable instance of calculation was recorded at Aylmer, Canada, last week, where a barber named Johnson, for a bet of firty cents, ran under the cara for a bet of hely cents, ran under the cars of a railway train that was passing at a round speed. He won the wager, though he lost the heel of one boot by a wheel that came dupleasantly close as he emerged. On his return to this country, he sought out the minister and asked him about the fee. "My friend, I received at your marriage a very small quantity of fine-cut chewing tobacco, foided in a very small piece of paper," was the minister's reply.

A very curious discovery has just been made in the Department of the Nievre. In a marsh, hear the old town of Entrains, at a depth of eighteen or twenty feet, has been found a gigantic stone statue of Apollo seated. Unfortunately it was broken in extracting it, but it has been temporarily erected in the courtyard of the Mairie. A singular circumstance is that it has on the neck a deep incision made with a saw. Evidently an attempt had been made to decapitate it, but the mass of material forming the throat and the waving hair had offered such resistance that the iconclociasts had abandoned their task in despair. had abandoned their task in despair.

"Gentlemen, I have also seen tough times. When I was sailing the schooner Fortune, forty years ago, two of us were swept overboard in a storm on Lake Erie, one black night. A hatch cover went with us, and it so happened that we both clutched it. It was not large enough to support two. I was captain, he a sailor. I had a family, he had none. I shouted to him to quit his hold, and when he would not, I reached over, clutched his throat, and held on till his fingers loosened and he went to the bottom of the lake! It was twenty miles off Point Betsey, and, with a shrill, wild shriek, which yet lingers in my ears, the poor wretch went to his death! May the Lord forgive me!"

With his chair tilted against the wall,

With his chair tilted against the wall, With his clair titled against the wait, a lanky, sunflowerish chap had been nodding his head right and left, as it sleeping. As the captain's narrative was concluded the stranger rose up and solemnly said:
"I am that man!"
The crowd looked at him in astonish-

"I landed on Point Betsey next merning in time for breakfast, and I swore a solemn oath that I'd lick you for choking me if I had to live a hundred years "You can't be the man," replied the captain, tooking suspiciously at the fel-low's big fists; "it was forty years ago."
"I know it was, and for forty years I've been aching to lick you out of your boots!"

The captain had lied, but he didn's want to own it, and he said:
"That sallor's name was Dick Rice."
"Kerect!" bowed the stranger; "that's

"But he was taller than you."
"Being in the water so long that night
I shrunk just a foot?" was the cool rejoinder. "Well, I know you can't be the man," said the captain.

"I am the man, and now I'm going to maul you to pulp! No man can choke me and then brag about it?"

He sailed in and upset the Captain,

He sailed in and upset the Captain, but was then set upon by the whole crowd. He got into the eye of the wind and hung there for a time, but presently he paid off a little, got the wind on his quarter, and went at it to lick ten times his weight in old liars. He was a very ambitious man, and those who could get out doors got out, and those who couldn't offered him a gallon of whisky to come to anchor. He furied his sails on this understanding, and as he set his glass down for the third drink, he wiped his bleeding ear and remarked:

"When a man tries to sacrifice me in order to save himself, he don't know was he's fooling with!"

He was the biggest liar of them at, but he made the most of it.
